

Ethics – It's a Matter of Choice

How does a corporation perceive others and how are they perceived? Can you decipher if your company's policies and procedures demonstrate it has chosen to be ethical in operation, attitude and motivation? Learn to define an ethical issue and create an ethical solution through concepts presented in this program.

This program can be presented in 1 to 3 hours depending on the intention of the sponsor organization. A maximum benefit can be derived in one session, either a monthly meeting program of one hour or as a seminar session of up to 3 hours depending on discussion, interaction and role-playing. There is an optional video available that is approximately 30 minutes in duration.

A credit professional, a person with management or supervisory experience or a human resource professional would be capable of presenting this program.

Since ethical conduct affects everyone both personally and professionally, all work areas would benefit from this program. It is important for professionals to know how to determine an ethical dilemma and to understand how to properly resolve them in order to protect both the business and the individual. The target audience is all employees, including managers and supervisors. This information is applicable to all levels. Everyone has a stake in the action and the result. Management is the key to making ethics a part of the corporate operation.

Program content highlights

- ✓ Attitudes that contribute to a company's ethical behavior
- ✓ How ethics affect business operations
- ✓ Results of ethics in business
- ✓ Keys to ethical actions
- ✓ Government regulations
- ✓ Areas of risk
- ✓ Making it work
- ✓ Ethical dilemma quiz